ACADEMIC PLAYFULNESS & THE WEBINAR SERIES

The webinar series is aimed at spurring academic debate, dialogue, community and play. In the webinar series leading scholars, thinkers and practitioners within the field of playful higher education will share their knowledge and research through engaging intercultural dialogues with each other and the world. But the webinar series also has the mission of shedding light upon experimental or unconventional (i.e. playful) ways of using videoconferencing, chat and other digital tools within an academic format such as the webinar. The aim is to promote and facilitate intercultural dialogues and reflections around the theme of playful higher education in both thinking and action – That is, using the potentials of the academic format in ways that allow us to meet and play on the digital bridge between borders, cultures and perspectives in times of pandemic isolation, physical frontiers and social distancing. Here, we might all benefit from a little extra playfulness, cultural dialogue and human contact.
